CAPTURING ELEPHANTS.

Four days' march inland from Quilon, which is on the east coast of Africa and 250 miles above Madagascar, we came into the elephant country and made a permanent camp. My orders from the Hamburg house were to secure at least five elephants alive and deliver them on board ship at Quiloa. Our party consisted of three white men and forty-two natives, and we had seven horses and six teams of bullocks. Among the natives were several fellows who had hunted the big game with white men, and who were pretty thoroughly posted as to the creatures' habits. It would have been almost as easy to shoot an elephant as a buffalo, but to capture one alive and get him down to the coast was a different matter. Had we had a couple of tame elephants the task would have been far more simple, but there was nothing of the kind in that part of the country. I took from the ship a large supply of ropes, chains, tackle, straps, blocks and what ever else might come handy, and as soon as we had established our camp we began to look around for game.

Almost every species of wild beast makes some particular spot its home for a longer or shorter period. In Africa every quadruped is constantly on the move, and if limited at all it is to a large section of the country instead of a particular strip. The gnu, eland, antelope, deer and buffalo go in large droves, and never seem to tire, and the elephant will not remain in any particular locality more than a day unless there are strong reasons for it. We had our camp in a thick grove about two miles from a forest through which we knew elephants ranged, and orders were given against firing guns or moving about more than was necessary. An elephant will take the alarm as quick as a deer, and when once frightened he may not cool down for hours. After a couple of days four or five of us made a scout to the forest and we were delighted to find evidence that it was a favorite resort. The forest was a strip about nine miles long and two miles wide, thrusting itself down into a great plain like a tongue. About opposite our camp it narrowed to a width of half a mile, and further down it was cut short off, though there were groves scattered all over the plain.

We were rejoiced to find that this strip of forest was a veritable highway for the elephants passing back and forth, while the foliage was their choicest food. We spent two whole days getting the lay of the forest for several miles, and we finally selected a particular spot to work on. It was in the narrowest portion of the strip, and here we dug two pits and concealed them so nicely that the sharpest native would have mistrusted nothing. When all was ready we retired from the forest and posted a native in the nearest grove to act as sentinel for the remainder of the day. The grove was about an acre in extent, with the trees standing very thick, and we were about moving off, after instructing the native, when we herd a trumpet blast and a mighty rush. The blast of a mad elephant in his native wilds is a sound never to be forgotten. Each one as instantly realized that we had come upon an old "rogue," and that we were in deadly peril. An elephant who has become a crank and deserted his troop or been driven away is more dangerous than any other living thing. His sole thought is to destroy, and he loses all sense of fear.

Had we been mounted we could have scattered and outrun him, but we were all on foot, and our only safety was in sticking to the grove. When we heard him coming we dodged right and left and hurried deep into the grove. The old fellow had the eyes of a lynx, and wheeling from his first charge, he seemed determined to hunt us all down. Each one of us dodged on our own account, thus distracting his attention, but he finally pursued one of the natives so closely that the man had to take to a tree. He didn't have his choice, either, and was unfortunately driven to shelter in a tree about as large around as a man's body. He was hardly out of reach when the mad brute arrived at the trunk. I was in a much larger tree about forty feet away, and could plainly see the movements of the beast. He was an old bull, carrying heavy tusks, and he was mad all over. He tried hard to push the tree over, and though he could not succeed he shook the native around so as to give him a bad fright.

In order to call the brute off I fired at him several times, but of course did no damage. He, however, refused to leave the tree, and after standing for a moment in thought he put his shoulder against it, surged forward, and, after swaying back and forth half a dozen times, the tree broke short off about ten feet from the ground. The native was expecting it, and as the top crashed through the trees he caught at a limb and pulled himself into a large tree. The elephant soon became aware of his escape, and likewise recognized the fact that all of us were out of his reach, and, after trumpeting dis disappointment, he slowly retired and gave us opportunity to come down. We left the grove as quietly as possible and made haste back to camp. We must move at once. The "rogue" elephant does not travel about much, and his being in the grove was a menace to us. Should he discover our camp he would attack us off hand. We at once hitched up our teams, struck our tents, and removed to a grove two miles away. While not entirely safe here, we might escape observation. On two sides of us the approach was marshy, while on the others it was rather broken. Next day after our removal it rained, and none of us left the grove.

On the morning of the second day, just as we were rolling out of our blankets, a cry from half a dozen natives alarmed the camp. As I turned my eyes in that direction, and beheld a sight which made my hair stand on end. That "rogue" elephant was on the plain about half a mile away and making a bee line for our camp. He was swinging his trunk in an angry way, and his speed was something terrific. Three or four of us sprang for our rifles, but he would have been among us before we could have fired a shot had not an accident happened. He charged at us over the marshy ground, and two hundred feet from the wagons the ground grew so soft that he sank to his knees, floundered ahead a few feet, and then rolled over on his left side. He was out of breath with his run and his fall, and then was the time to take him. As he lay there roaring his dismay and anger, we got out the ropes and chains and dashed for his legs. We got nooses over both hind legs and carried the free end to the nearest tree, and then we had the old fellow for sure. He was so mad that he actually shed tears, and he trumpeted until he tired his machine out. After we had him fast every man cut a stick, and for two hours we beat every part of the beast we could reach.

Moreover, we walked on him, kicked him, called him names and degraded him in every possible way. This was by the advice of the natives, who said that it would soon break his spirit and cause him to give up. All day long the monster lay on his side in the muck, boiling over with rage but helpless. He put in the night there, too, and next morning his spirit was broken. We cast the noose free from one leg, got a pry under his hips, and after an hour's hard work put him on his feet and got him to solid land. The fight had all been taken out of him, and he would cower whenever any one shook a club at him. When the natives washed him up a dozen great scars were revealed on his shoulders and flanks as proofs that he was a fighter, and my head man, who had lived in the elephant country all his days, computed the beast's age at 110 years.

No animal becomes docile and tractable so quick as the elephant. He must be conquered by fear, and when once he gives in you have only an occasional tantrum to look out for. We kept right at our captive, flogging and bulldozing and giving him to understand that we were boss, and at the end of three days he was as humble as pie. We could make no use of him as a hunter, as we had no rig, and as none of the men had any experience in driving an elephant; but we should have no trouble in getting him to the coast, and he was worth several thousand dollars.

It was ten days after his capture that one of our scouts brought word that a troop of elephants had appeared in the forest. We had suspected this by the uneasy movements of our captive. It did not seem possible that he could scent his kind four or five miles away, but his actions went to prove that such was the case. We had him securely fastened by one hind leg, but he did not try to break away. On the contrary, he acted vexed and out of sorts, and now and then uttered a blast of defiance. It was easy to see that he would have a hostile greeting for any elephant coming our way.

The troop of elephants reported by the scout numbered thirteen, and were five or six miles above us. Mr. Williams, my assistant, took a portion of the men and made a detour so as to strike in behind the troop and drive them down, and five or six of us stationed ourselves at the southern limit of the forest. It was hoped that in driving the beasts back and forth along the narrow neck at least one of them might get a tumble into a pit, and it was with great anxiety that we waited their coming. It was about 4 o'clock in the afternoon when we caught them. After they had crossed the neck we closed up and sought to drive them back, but they had become frightened, and the job was too great for us.

They broke off to the right and left the cover of the woods for the open plain, and we felt some anxiety as we saw that they held a straight course for our camp. The three of us who were mounted pursued at a gallop, and we were witnesses of a curious incident. The troop were headed for the grove in which we had encamped, and were about half a mile away, when our captive "rogue" uttered three or four shrill blasts and suddenly appeared in sight having broken the rope which held him to a tree. He made straight for the troop challenging as he came, and the beasts no sooner saw him than they exhibited fear and confusion. They halted, turned to the right and left, and were all mixed up when the old chap came down on them like a landslide. The first one he struck was a half grown elephant, and he knocked him flat on the grass and rolled him over and over. Then he sailed in to clean out the shanty, and the blows from his trunk could be heard a mile away.

Such a cloud of dust was kicked up that we soon lost sight of the particulars, but in a few minutes the troop bolted off at right angles and soon entered a grove, and we drew near to find the old "rogue" standing over the one he had rolled over. He seemed to be waiting for us to come up, and after a little the native who had the most to do with him ventured close up. I rode off and got a rope, and this was made fast to the captive's legs, and he was encouraged to get on his feet. Then the old chap steered him straight for camp while we followed, holding to the ropes. Once or twice the kid showed a disposition to bolt, but the big one gave him a resounding whack with his trunk and curbed his ambition. We made him fast to a tree, and the "rogue" then took his place without a hint being given him and was re fastened.

It was next morning before we could examine our pits, and then we found another captive. A big bull elephant was lying on his side in one of them, while the other had been avoided. This animal was in the London Gardens for twenty years under the name of "Old Royal," and was afterwards sold to go to Germany. We got him out of the pit by digging around him, and then using a block and tackle to lift him to his feet. He had been three days without food or drink when we got him out, and his spirit was pretty well broken. His great size not only made him an attraction in Europe, but one of his tusks was so singularly marked as to excite the attention of all naturalists. About midway of its length the left tusk had a blood stain as big as a silver half dollar. It looked as fresh as if spattered on only a moment before, but it was found to extend clear through the tusk. Our three captives were got down to the coast without the least trouble, and our luck in making three such captures in the short space of twenty days has never been equalled by menagerie men in any land. The old "rogue" who set out to annihilate us brought all our good luck. New York Sun.

PRESIDENT BARNARD'S ROMANCE.

HIS BRIDE WAS ONCE A FLOWER GIRL IN A DAYTON O., MARKET-HOUSE.

From the New York World.

The account of the opening of Barnard college, which memorializes the name of the late president of Columbia college, recalls a pretty little romance of two score years ago in Dayton O. There were extensive "market-houses," the roofs of which projected and afforded a shelter, beneath which the farmers and gardeners displayed their produce. Along one end of the market house ran a principal thoroughfare, traveled daily by the business and professional men of the town. One soft, sunshiny spring morning there appeared at the market-house a flower-girl selling bouquets. The girl was young and charming and spoke with a pretty French accent. The first young man who passed that way bought a bouquet. Every one who followed did like-wise. In an hour the first flower sale that had ever taken place in Dayton was ended, the stock sold out, and the fair vender disappeared.

Next market day the little maiden appeared again. She charmed every one she talked with, but she did not reveal her identity to any one and repelled all curious queries with a gentle dignity that was an insurmountable barrier.

For two seasons the flower-girl lit up the dingy market house by her presence. One day she was gone. From that time the place knew her no more. Years after one of the young ladies who had been a patron of the fair flower-seller was in New York shopping in Stewart's. A stranger approached, and, greeted her by her maiden name, expressed much pleasure at the meeting and inquired for Dayton people.

"Doubtless you have forgotten me," said the stranger, "but you used to buy my flowers in the market-house. That was long ago. I live here now. I am married. Here is my card." It bore the name of the wife of President Barnard, of Columbia college.

A subsequent conversation explained the mystery of the flower-seller. The father of Mlle. —— was exiled from Paris for political reasons and his estate confiscated. He came to America and drifted to Dayton, where, in a modest cottage in the French quarter, he beguiled the term of his banishment by cultivating flowers, while their little daughter eked out their slender income by selling boquets. After ten years changes in the government restored in a measure their fallen fortunes and father and daughter were enabled to come East and assume the social position which belonged to them.

Snag-Boat Work on Western Rivers.

Since the advent of the steam horse, those of Uncle Sam's good subjects who have known the delightful experiences of travel in the "stern-wheelers" on Western rivers may have taken the idea into their heads that the rivers and boats had nothing to do but "dry up" and decay.

Those of the aforesaid subjects who take a slip down river now and again know that they have not done anything of the sort; in fact, the rivers are just a little too active for Uncle Sam, for while they refuse to dry up, they keep him hard at work with his snag-boats to prevent their choking up.

These boats are built entirely of steel, in the strongest manner possible, having powerful engines, and a hull in two sections (an enlarged model bootjack); fitted with powerful steel derricks, chains, and metal tackle, they are forced up to the heaviest obstructions, and lift them easily from the narrow channels of the rivers. During low water all the channels used by passenger and freight steamers are patrolled by these boats, and dangerous snags are pulled out as fast as they are uncovered by the falling water. During high water, and after each of the sudden rises for which these rivers are notable, it is the duty of these boats to watch the "floaters"—a term applied to heavy debris and boats adrift; in event of fire, to assist in silencing the conflagration with her big pumps; and in breaking up and clearing away fallen bridges or wreckage in the channel or at landings by aid of a peculiar and powerful steel hook attached to her fore-derrick, called, in river-men's parlance, a "parrots nose."

There are a number of these boats, and each carries the usual list of officers, engineers, and crew. Without their aid the Western rivers in many places would be rendered entirely unnavigable on account of "snags" and "floaters."—Harper's Weekly.

Gardens of Babylon.

The hanging gardens of Babylon appear to have been square, each being 400 feet in length. They were carried in the manner of large terraces one above the other; till they rose as high as the walls of the city, the ascent being from terrace to terrace by stairs 10 feet wide. The whole pile was sustained by vast arches raised on other arches and strengthened by a wall surrounding it 22 feet in thickness. On the top of these arches were laid large flat stones, 16 feet long and 4 feet broad. These were lined with brick, closely cemmented together with plaster of bitumen, and that covered with sheets of lead, upon which lay the mold of the garden, where there were large trees, shrubs and flowers, with various sorts of these gardens, each containing about four acres, and disposed in the form of an amphitheatre.

A pen that will obviate frequent applications to the ink stand can be made with the utmost ease, and is said to be perfectly reliable. Two ordinary pens of the same pattern are inserted in one holder. The inner pen will perform the operation of writing while between it and the outer one a supply of ink will be reserved—the twin-pen having, of course, been dipped in the ink—which will be amply sufficient to write several pages of manuscript, though the rate of writing will materially affect the quantity of work that can be performed with one supply of ink. It is not necessary that two pens should be very close together, but should the ink not flow freely enough, the points may be brought nearer by using a tiny rubber or bit of thread.

DECLINE OF THE FARMER.

CAUSES OF DEPRECIATION OF FARM LANDS IN THE EASTERN STATES.

From the Springfield Republican.

An article in the current number of the Quarterly Journal of Economics by Alfred H Peters discusses the probable causes that have combined to depreciate farming land in the Eastern and Middle States—a subject just now especially engaging the attention of the community affected. Considering the causes more commonly cited as at work to produce these results, he regards Western competition as of less potency than popularly supposed. The Eastern farmers' lower rate of interest, smaller outlay for machines, less waste and more thorough cultivation offset the Western advantage of lower priced, more fertile and easier tilled lands. This is, perhaps, putting it too strong, and, if the Eastern farmer were necessarily confined in his efforts to grain-raising, it certainly would be; but when propinquity to markets, transportation facilities and the adaptability of the lands to a great variety of agricultural effort are considered, we are driven to the conclusion that of no particular necessity is the Eastern farmer handicapped by Western competition.

Then, as to the purchase of land during the inflation period of the war, it cannot be said this writer thinks, that the agricultural class suffered more than other classes in the decline. There has been no advance in the price of labor and payments in kind have had to be replaced by money payments, which has placed the farmer in a more disadvantagous position than formerly. Direct taxation since the war has been an increasing burden to the agriculturist, and while tariff taxation has weighed heavily upon him the decline in the cost of production and prices in many dutiable commodities the world over has been such as to in a great measure offset this load. All these considerations apply equally to Western farming conditions, and hence constitute no special cause for the decline of Eastern farm lands. There has been impoverishment of the soil, but not generally and only through bad management. "On the whole," says Mr. Peters, "agriculture in the Eastern and Middle States has been as profitable in the last ten years as in any other ten years of the nations existence save during the war period."

That is perhaps questionable, but let it pass. The main consideration yet remains: Has agriculture been as profitable since 1870 relatively with other occupations as before the war? Mr. Peters practically admits that it has not. There we have one potent cause of the depreciation of farming land. But what is the cause of the decline? We are thus brought back again to a consideration of the equity of the distributions of present government burdens and social rewards and punishments. There can be no doubt that, while the Eastern farmer has not of enduring necessity been harmed greatly by Western competition and has some advantages not enjoyed by the pararie husbandman, the contrasts betwen returns from landed and other industries are far sharper in the East than in the West and social lines are much more closely drawn. Hence we may have a special reasons for the deprecation of the Eastern lands which does not equally apply to the west; and if to this be added the failure of the Eastern farmer to more readily adapt himself to the changed conditions forced by Western competition, two leading causes for which search is made have undoubtedly been found.

And out of the first of these come social and moral influences which Mr. Peters rightly considers more potent in driving people from the farms than most others. The homage paid to to wealth in the Northern United States for the last quarter of a century has turned the heads of the younger portion of the agricultural class and set it adrift where the great fortunes have been and are being made. It is not that farming fails to yield a comfortable and independent existance, but that it fails to bring the sudden wealth with resulting social and political rewards and consideration, which less exacting effort in other lines of industury has so often brought.

The isolation of the farm aids in strengthening these influences. The love of individual independence is no longer the force it once was in this country. The subserviency and dependence of the ordinary city calling counts as nothing to the glamor, intensity and superficial polish of the life there possible. This is the worst feature of the whole subject and marks a tendency that is fraught with danger to the Republic.

Edison's Machines.

Mr. Edison is reported, in a conversation with an interviewer who solicited his ideas on the subject of the projected world's fair in New York, as saying that he would take an acre of space in such a fair and completely cover it with his inventions, of which he has no less than seventy now under way. "One of the most peculiar, and now promising good results," said Mr. Edison, "is what I may call a far sight machine." By means of this extraordinary invention he hopes to be able to increase the range of vision by hundreds of miles, so that, for instance, "a man in New York could see the features of his friend in Boston with as much ease as he could see a performance on the stage. That," he added, "would be an invention worthy a prominent place in the world's fair, and I hope to have it perfected long before 1882."—Iron.

Fog and its causes have been the subject of much discussion. By one writer the celebrated London fog is attributed to the cooling of the air by radiation from hillsides near the city, which air, flowing down, envelops the city. It has also been suggested that a cool northerly wind on the west side of a storm flows into the saturated air on the south side and condenses fog. In Newfoundland it is thought that fog is produced by the flowing of a saturated current southward to cooler waters, which often have ice floating in them. In one of these cases, however, does it seem that the theories advanced have been substantiated, and the subject offers an interesting field of investigation to the scientist.

Strange Phenomena.

The imaginings of the romancers have again and again been in time realized by the discoveries of the scientists, and if the Oriental idea, that nothing can be fancied unless it really has somewhere an existence, may be supposed to have any foundation, it is to be expected that in time many more of the wonders of fiction will be brought into the realms of sober fact.

A case in point is afforded by an experiment tried at the hospital of the Salpetriere. A subject having been hypnotized, the physician conducting the experiment traced his name upon the patient's arm with a blunt probe, saying to him:

"This afternoon at 4 o'clock you will go to sleep and blood will then issue from your arms on the lines which I have traced."

The subject fell asleep at the hour named and the letters appeared upon his arm in relief, marked with bright red and here and there with minute drops of blood. The same patient was subsequently heard, in a spontaneous attack of hysteria, to command his arm ta blee, amd the cutaneous hemorrhage reappeared.

JUDGE WHITE ON DUTIES OF JURYMEN.

In a case recently tried in the Allegheny county court, the jury, after being out six hours sent down word to Judge White that they were unable to agree on a verdict, the jury standing 11 to 1 and the one would not give in. Judge White had the jury brought into court and in kind, but firm words, informed them that he was surprised that they could not agree. The case was a trifling one, and involved hardly anything more than the question of costs, as he had intimated in his charge. His honor stated that the probability was that the one juror was wrong, as there were eleven to one chances that way. The juror should feel that the eleven men were as honest and intelligent as he was. It is not a question of conscience with jurors; that is a mistaken idea; it is simply a question of judgment, and a majority could agree without injury to the conscience. His honor stated that he could not think of discharging the jury, and hoped they would reach a verdict in a few minutes. The obstinate juror was evidently impressed with the judge's remarks, as he immediately gave in to the other eleven, without leaving the box a verdict of not guilty was handed down.

ITEMS.

According to the theory which predicts the number of snows in the coming winter on the moon's age at the time of the first snowfall, we shall have 29 of these interesting visitors before the robins come again. According to the theory which fixes the number by the day of the month there will be 23, and according to that which measures the future snows by the days yet remaining in the month, there will be 8. Take your choice.

Those who are best posted upon the condition and prospects of the iron industry say that an era of activity is at hand. As yet there has been no change in the price of pig iron, but steel rails and other forms of manufactured iron have advanced considerably. The demand is large and seems to be increasing.

Reports of date of October 1 give the number as blast furnaces in operation as 248, with a weekly capacity of 139,010 tons, while 145 furnaces, with a capacity of 52,488 tons, are idle. Upon investigation, however, it was found that many of the idle furnaces are antiquated in design, dismantled, or badly located, so that the idle capacity is only about 14,000 tons per week. In other words, 91 per cent. of the total producing capacity is already in blast. Some furnaces are always temporarily idle for repairs and the percentage is rarely greater than this. It may be said that the country is producing all the pig iron its capacity will permit.

An invention which is likely to be of considerable importance from a sanitary point of view has been tested in England with satisfactory results. It consists in the application of a preparation to coal, by which the constituents are said to be concentrated and hardened. In practice the coal is steeped in the solution, and the fuel can be used either wet or dry. Two large fires were shown at the demonstration, one being made with coal in its normal condition and the other with the treated coal. The difference was manifest, the chemicalized coal giving off but a very trifling amount of smoke, while a good blazing fire was maintained. The treatment of the coal is said to cost twelve cents per ton, every expense included. It is proposed that the coal shall be treated in coal merchants' yards, ready for delivery to the consumer.

The Renaissance of the Fan.

After a long interval, a long period of neglect, the year 1820 saw a revival in the taste for fans. It chanced that a grand ball was preparing at the Tuileries, at which several "costume quardeills," were to be danced. Mme. la Duchesse de Berri had undertaken to get up a Louis XV quardrille, and was seeking every where—had sought every where in vain—for fans of that period. Suddenly some one remembered having seen some old fans in the shop window of a perfumer named Vonier, who lived in the Rue Coumartin. Vanier had collected old fans for some time as an amateur. His fans were taken to the place in the quardrille they created a furor and were all purchased. The Duchesse de Berri's ball begun the renaissance of the fan. —Louisa Parr in Harper's Magazine

DEMOCRATIC DAY!

Ohio, Iowa, New York, Maryland, Virginia and New Jersey in the Democratic column.

THE REPUBLICANS CARRY THE QUAYSTONE STATE AND MASSACHUSETTS.

Henry K. Boyer, republican, was elected State Treasurer by 60,000, Philadelphia giving him 41,080 plurality.

The Virginia Democrats have beaten William Mahone for governor by a majority that is not likely to fall below 20,000 and may exceed that; their entire state ticket is elected and they will have a working majority in the legislature.

Maryland went democratic, and Baltimore elected a democratic mayor by 5000 majority. New York elected the democratic ticket by 22,000 majority and made gains in the legislature, but not enough to control it. Massachusetts elected the entire republican ticket.

LATEST.

The latest returns show that the Democrats have carried Ohio by a plurality of 12,000. They have elected the Governor and have a majority of 10 in the legislature on joint ballot.

Boies, Democrat, is elected Governor in Iowa by a plurality of 13,000.

Mahone, republican candidate for governor in Virginia is defeated by 30,000.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our regular correspondent.]

Washington, Nov. 4. 1889.

Civil Service Commissioner Thompson's friends indignantly deny the statement charging him with having assisted in collecting campaign contributions for the democratic National committee in 1888 from the clerks in the Treasury department while he was Assistant Secretary of that Department. Mr. Youman, who was chief clerk of the Treasury at the time, makes the following statement, which is corroborated by a number of other officials, some of them republicans:

'During the incumbency of Mr. Thompson as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, I was Chief Clerk and Superintendent of the Treasury building, and charged with the enforcement of all orders. I remember distinctly during the campaign of 1888 one of my subordinates, with-out, my knowledge, had collected or received from the employes some seventy five dollars and informed me of it, and wished to turn the money over to me to be forwarded to the democratic committee. I declined to receive it, and at once reported the fact to Assistant Secretary Thompson, who distinctly and emphatically told me that such act was illegal and must not be permitted in the department, and directed me to send for this subordinate and order him to return the money to the persons from whom he had received it, upon pain of dismissal (which I did and the money was so returned), and further to stop all that kind of work in the department.

This silly charge was brought against Mr. Thompson by republicans because he has taken steps to prosecute members of a Virginia republican club of this city for collecting money from Government employes for the Mahone campaign fund.

Ex-Secretary Bayard will be married in this city next Thursday, to Miss Clymer. This marriage has been reported as about to take place at least a half dozen times during the last year. The anouncement is official, as your correspondent has one of the few cards issued.

A committee of negro preachers called on Mr. Harrison last week and endeavored to get him to commit himself to the absurd scheme, proposed by the recent convention of negro Baptists held at Indianapolis, of asking Congress to appropriate $50,000,000 to aid the negroes of the South in emigrating to the west. The same committe afterwards called on the Attorney General and presented a long string of alleged political outrages at the South. From all that can be learned they did not receive much consolation from either of the gentlemen visited. They only got some very indefinite and diplomatic promises.

L. B. Prince, the Governor of New Mexico, makes a strong showing in his annual report to the Secretary of the Interior, in favor of the admission of that Territory as a state. It is expected that the democrats in Congress will make a determined fight during the coming session for the admission of New Mexico and Idaho.

The Government directors of the Union Pacific railroad, in their annual report, say that the interests of the United States demand early action by Congress to secure the payment by this company of its indebtedness to the Government. They indorse the (Outhwaite) bill, which was pending when the last Congress adjourned. It remains to be seen whether the millionaire lobby will be successful in again defeating this much needed legislation during the coming Congress. Representative Outhwaite proposes to reintroduce the same bill as soon as Congress meets, and to use his utmost endeavor to push it through the House. There is little doubt of its being passed by the House, but the danger lies in the Senate, which has always been inclined, for obvious reasons, to be extremely lenient in its dealings with the Pacific railroads.

Mr. Harrison is understood to have sat down somewhat heavily on Secretary Noble in regard to the dismissal of those employes of the Pension office whose pensions were rerated by the late Commissioner Tanner. The Secretary wanted to dismiss them all, but the President has given him orders that none are to be dismissed unless it can be fully shown that they are guilty of having violated the law. The only one of them dismissed so far is a democrat, and it is only fair to Mr. Harrison to say that he was removed before the matter was brought to the President's attention.

The Postmaster General has backed down from the dictatorial position he assumed towards the telegraph companies some months ago, and has set the rates to be paid by the Government for official telegraph messages much higher than the price he then named. The rates are about the same as those charged everyone by the B. & O. telegraph company when it was swallowed by the Western Union monopoly.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 28, NAMED AS THE DAY TO GIVE THANKS TO GOD.

The following proclamation, setting apart Thursday, November 28, as a day of national thanksgiving, has been issued:

"By The President of the United States,

A Proclamation:

"A highly favored people, mindful of their dependence on the bounty of Divine Providence, should seek fitting occasion to testify gratitude and ascribe praise to Him who is the author of their many blessings. It behooves us, then, to look back with thankful hearts over the past year and bless God for His mercyin vouching to this land enduringpeace, to our people freedom from pestilence and famine, to our husbandmen abundant harvests and to them that labor a recompense for their toil.

"Now, therefore, I, Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States of America, do earnestly recommend that Thursday, the 28th day of this month of November, be set apart as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, and that the people of our country, ceasing from the cares and labors of their working day, shall assemble in their respective places of worship and give thanks to God, who has prospered us on our way and made our paths the paths of peace, beseeching Him to bless the day to our present and future good, making it truly one of thanksgiving for each reunited home circle as for the nation at large.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at Washington this first day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand, eight hundred and eighty-nine, and of the independence of one hundred and fourteenth.

"BENJAMIN HARRISON.

"By the President, James G. Blaine, Secretary of State."

Secretary Tracey, Nov. 1st. accepted the protected cruiser Charleston, built by the Union iron works Company of San Francisco.

The debt statement issued November 1st. shows that the reduction in the public debt during October amounts to $9, 104,953.72. Total cash in the treasury' $625,067,725.76.

Why Hayes is Happy.

for young ladies who are troubled with freckles, pimples, moth and tan and a bad skin generally to use liquid paints or dry powders, for they only make the skin look well for the time being. To have a good complexion you must have pure blood. Use Sulphur Bitter's and your skin will be fair and complexion rosy. — Young Ladies' Magazine. 11 8-2w.

Catarrh

May affect any portion of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, and the most liable to be neglected. It cannot be cured by local applications. Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, working through the blood, eradicates the impurity which causes and promotes the catarrh, and soon effects a permanent cure. At the same time Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up the whole system, and makes one feel renewed in strength and health. If you suffer from catarrh, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Ringing Noises Impure Blood

"I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. Hood's Sarsaparilla gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GIBB, 1029 Eighth St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Nervous, Bilious, or Congestive Forms.

This Remedy is the perscription of one of the leading physicians of Paris, France, and was used by him with unparalleled success for over thirty years, it was first given to the public as a proprietary medicine in 1878. Since which time it has found its way into almost every county on the face of the globe, and become a favorite remedy with thousands of the leading physicians. Medical societies have discussed its marvelous success at their annual conventions, and after their official chemists have analyzed it and found that it contained no opiates, bromides or other harmful ingredients placed it among their standard remedies.

Miss Rachel Dawson, J. L. Meck, Bruce Smith, Mr. Stiles Swartz.

CARDS.

Mr. A. B. Miller.

Persons calling for these letters please say, they were advertised Oct. 29, 1889.

One cent will be charged on each letter advertised.

A. B. CATHCART, P. M.

The Espy Planing Mill formerly owned by Snyder, Hartman & Co., has again changed hands. B. F. Redline has purchased it, and is repairing it throughout, and will put in new machinery. Mr. Redline has had large experience in the lumber business and has been very successful, and no doubt he will make the Planing Mill pay equally as well. It is a good location, and there is no reason why he should not command a lucrative patronage

The Agricultural Works have been purchased by the Acme Oil Co. of Titusville, who are erecting two iron tanks 15 feet in diameter and 20 feet high, one tank 15 feet each way, and one tank 12 by 15 feet, the latter for lubricating oils. The oil will be brought here in tank cars, and pumped into the tanks, and from there it will be run into barrels. The station is under the management of H. D. Rodgers, who also has charge of the stations at Danville, Sunbury, Milton, Shamokin, Selins Grove, Hazleton and other points. The Acme Oils are well known and their already large trade will be greatly increased by this step.

Enos Jacoby died on Tuesday, the 5th inst., at his home on Iron street, aged 60 years, 1 month and 13 days. He has had several paralytic strokes in the past few years, and was stricken down again on Saturday night and never regained consciousness. He was born in Bloomsburg and always lived here. While a boy he spent four years at sea on a whaling vessel. On Aug. 16, 1854, he married Catharine, a daughter of Valentine Bidleman.

Mr. Jacoby served as street commissioner a number of years, and was one of the best officials in that capacity the town has ever had. He was a good citizen, a genial man, and a member of the Episcopal church. The burial took place on Thursday afternoon at the house, at 2 o'clock, the services being conducted by Rev. W. C. Leverett. Mrs. Jacoby and three children are left to mourn his loss.

A rumor has been circulated recently to the effect that a suit brought against Paul E. Wirt in New York for an alleged infringement in fountain pens has been decided against him. We are authorized to say that the rumor is without foundation in fact, and that no suit has been brought against him in which there is the slightest probability of his defeat.

Farmers who have surplus potatoes to sell had better market them at current prices as all the advices are that the crop is a prodigious one in the west. In Livingston, one of the greatest potato growing counties of New York, they are slow of sale at forty cents per bushel, and good judges in that locality confidently predict twenty-five cents will be the ruling price for them.—Ex.

We take the above from our exchanges and give it to the farmers for their consideration. We are reliably informed that in Indiana potatoes meet with slow sale at 25 cents per bushel.

Hanging lamps of the latest patterns at J. H. Mercer's Drug and Book Store. From $2.50 to $10.00 each. Call and see before buying elsewhere.

On Monday next and thereafter, a train will leave Bloomsburg on the P. & R. at 6 02 in the morning for Philadelphia reaching the city about noon. Returning it will leave Philadelphia at 6 o'clock in the evening reaching Bloomsburg at 11.26. An effort is being made to get up an excursion party to go down on the first trip, and it is probable that twenty or thirty gentlemen will go down. This train was put on in response to a petition circulated by Col. Jamison, and it gives the people of this section an opportunity that they never had before, namely, to go to Philadelphia and intermediate points and return the same day.

From Pittston comes a story of a gold find and Carbondale trots out a special dispatch which hints at mineral wealth in the way of silver and of copper ores, buried beneath its soil. Right around the coal mining towns there are hundreds of deluded individuals who think that beneath the coal measures lie a richer find, a greater fortune than ever coal baron dug. Down at Tamaqua, in Schuylkill can be seen the evidences of the folly of a foreign corporation which expended nearly $40,000 in the vain search for gold.

There is gold hidden in the mountains of the anthracite coal fields. Any geologist will tell you that. But it is in very minute quantities. So small that even a Chinaman would starve if he undertook to live on the gold he dug. But this Tamaqua corporation had a lot of complicated machinery which would crush the ore and pick out the golden particles at the same time. It was one of the electric sugar brand of swindles. The company never realized nothing but debts, but there is one old man who will go down to his grave with faith in the "demagnetization machine" and the presence of a great gold find at Tamaqua, but he will never find it.

Even the hills of the farming country of Columbia county have been sacrificed by gold seekers. Sometimes it was the ignus fatus of an old story that lured them on and more often it was a plain monomania. Just what started the Pittston people to grubbing isn't known They will soon stop however.—Ashland Advocate.

Barred Out.

A SUNBURY LAWYER STOPPED ON THE THRESHOLD OF GIRARD COLLEGE.

S. P. Boyer, Sunbury's famous criminal lawyer, is probably as well known as any man in Northumberland county, says the Evening Herald. Nobody within its confines would for a moment stretch his imagination to the extent of putting him in a pulpit with a sermon in his hands. And yet, size him up, and he does bear a resemblance to a chicken-fed circuit rider of the pioneer day when Peter Cartwright set the mark for religious grace. Not many years ago, the genial Solomon, being in Philadelphia with his Prince Albert coat, his white necktie, his good capon-lined paunch, and a few hours of leisure time on his hands, concluded to visit Girard College. A street car conveniently let him off at the gate, but the keeper of the latter barred his further passage with—

"You can't go in there sir. I'm very sorry, but it's contrary to rules."

Solomon halted, removed his silk hat, bowed his head slightly, produced his handkerchief mechanically, and in a modulated voice inquired:

"Ah, I see. What is ze reason I can not go in sir? What are the rules that keep me out? What makes you single me out to apply your rules and those other people pass through without a question."

"It's in his will, sir."

"Whose will, pray?"

"Stephen Girard's, sir, and we can't change it."

"What has Stephen Girard's will to do with my going through that gate. He didn't know me, and he couldn't have singled me out?"

"He prohibited the entrance of ministers to the grounds."

"The d-e-v-i-l he did. What's that to do with me?"

"Excuse me. You may go in. I'm sorry for my mistake, sir," replied the gate keeper blushing and bowing as he made way for Northumberland county's barrister, who acted upon the invitation and paid no attention to the suspicious glances shot at him by professors and pupils as he carried ministerial and white necktie through the premises.

KLINE—McHENRY.

The residents of our quiet little town were much surprised on Thursday afternoon last, to see Mr. Will Kline drive up to J. B. McHenry's hotel and capture the landlords' oldest daughter Miss Nettie, and take her off to Rohrsburg where they were married by the Rev. Mathers. Mr. H. F. Kelchner of Stillwater, and Miss Lizzie Heacock of Benton acted as waiters.

After the marriage knot was tied the happy party went on to Jerseytown where they stayed until the next day, when they went on to Eyersgrove where they took dinner at Fulmer's hotel After spending a happy day they started home arriving about seven o'clock Friday night.

The women of Benton thought they would turn the tables by surprising them, accordingly they secured bells, pans, drums, horns, &c., and gave them a lively serenade. The day was one long to be remembered.

We extend our heartiest congratulations and trust that their journey through life may be long, happy and prosperous.

Vote in Bloomsburg.

The election in this town on Tuesday November 5th was the most quiet known for many years. The republicans made a "still hunt" and succeeded in getting out 60 per cent of the entire vote, or 93 per cent of the vote of 1887. The democrats polled 50 per cent of their full vote or 80 per cent of the vote of 1887. The total vote for treasurer two years ago was democratic 330, republican 279—democratic majority 51. The net democratic stay at home ratio over two years ago was 46; which added to the vote of Tuesday shows that there is no democratic loss in this town. The following is the vote in full as polled Tuesday.

A Tin Wedding.

On Wednesday of last week a large number of invited guests assembled at the house of John and Addie Bogart, who resides near Fork. It being the 10th anniversary of their married life, they desired to keep the day memorial, by erecting a ten year mile stone, which they did by piling up roast turkey, chicken, cakes, pies, every thing in fact that the season afforded, until ths festive board fairly groaned under its load. The hungry crowd did ample justice to the occasion and retired only after keen appetites failed to relish.

The following presents were bestowed and the guests all returned to their homes well pleased with their day, Mr. A. T. Chapen, glass set, Mrs. A. T. Chapen, glass dish, Mrs. A. S. Larish, tin pail, Mrs. Heckman, child dress, Mrs. Richart, napkin plate, Mr. J. C. Richart, fruit dish, Miss Height, butter dish, Mrs. J. Humel, fruit dish, Miss Effie Creasy, spoon holder, Mrs. J. Notes From Espy.

The members and friends of the Lutheran church at Espy so gratefully remembered their Pastor, Rev. A. R. Glaze, on Hallow'een, as to hold the evening and its pleasures in happy recollection for time to come.

Mr. Glaze, upon returning from the North Branch Conference of the Susquehanna Synod, which was in session several days at Northumberland, found the parsonage filled with friends and parishioners whose countenances beamed with expressions of delight.

Each brought along to the parsonage a large cabbage-head, or something else needful and useful in the home.

Preparations were made beforehand for a good social time with the Pastor and his family, hence the abundance of excellent cake and ice-cream to which all were helped to their great satisfaction and delight.

After several interesting charades by the young people, an address and prayer by the Pastor they returned to their homes, and they may take comfort in the fact that their brief visit to the parsonage together with the good things they brought with them, are looked upon by him who ministers unto them in Spiritual things as a token of their appreciation of him and his. And it is hoped that this expression of their kindness will receive its due reward by Him who remembers the least thing done in His blessed name.

Luther Day will be observed in the Lutheran church at Espy on next Sunday morning. A sermon will be preached by the Pastor to the children, and the collection will be devoted to the work of Home Missions.

Distinguished Visitors.

Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, sister of Ex-President Cleveland, and a former mistress of the White House, accompanied by Mrs. S. C. Jayne, of Berwick, has been visiting Rev. Dr. Mitchel and family at the Presbyterian parsonage on Chestnut street since Monday. Miss Cleveland is on her way to Florida to spend the winter. Last winter her companion in the Land of Flowers was Mrs. Dunning, Mrs. Mitchell's sister. A warm friendship has existed between Miss Cleveland and Mrs. Dunning and sister for several years and the visit of the distinguished lady to our little mountain town is consequently a pleasant one.—*Mt. A Woman's Villainy.

SHE TRIES TO KIDNAP A CHILD AT THE SUNBURY STATION.

It was on the twenty-sixth of September last that an attempt was made to kidnap the two year old son of Mrs. Hacker, who lives on Arch street near Market. Mrs. Hacker had left her home in Shamokin about one month ago to pay a visit to friends in Plymouth. It was the first time she had traveled alone, and was standing in the station at Sunbury waiting for the train that was to bear her to her destination, when a young woman with light hair, light eyes, middling stout, and dressed in a light drab woolen dress, also wearing a small bonnet that corresponded with her dress, came in, scrutinized her surroundings and while Mrs. Hacker was engaged in conversation with another lady this female monster grabbed the child, lifted it on her shoulder and was about to take the little one away when the mother turned and took her child away. When the stranger saw that she was caught she laughed and in reply to question from Mrs. Hacker said that as she (Mrs. Hacker.) was going to Harrisburg she wanted to help her on the train. The Harrisburg train had already started and being afraid of arrest the woman jumped on the moving train and escaped. The mother being very much excited lost her presence of mind and did not endeavor to have the woman arrested. At last the Plymouth train arrived and Mrs. Hacker, with a few parcels and her child, boarded the train, but the happenings within the last hour could not be taken off her mind. Soon the breakman opened the door and cried "Bloomsburg," the train stopped, and who should enter but the very woman who endeavored to steal the child at Sunbury. She walked through the car and the eyes of the two women met, the stranger passed further on through the car, and when coming to the door she fell back in the arms of the brakeman in a dead faint. She soon came too however and stopping the conductor, told him she was on the wrong train and would like to get off. Many of the passengers thinking her fate a sad one, sympathized with her, and did what they could to relieve her, but instead of pity, she should have abuse and imprisonment in the darkest dungeons the county jails have. Mrs. Hacker returned to Shamokin a week ago, but thinking nothing could be done with the woman at this date she kept the matter quiet until a Dispatch's reporter got an inkling of the affair and made it his business to investigate and interviewed the mother. Mrs. Hacker is very intelligent lady and gave the reporter a very clear account of the occurance.—Shamokin Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, Nov. 8, 1889.

Plain solid color Camel Hairs crowd one long counter. You may have choice of half a dozen qualities, the meanest fit for any body's wear. They start at 75c, then $1, $1,25, $1.50, $2, $2.50, 39 to 47 inches wide.

blue	garnet
brown	olive
golden brown	olive green
mode	green
gray	rose

Some of the heavier weights are in lively demand for ladies' wraps.

There isn't a Dress Goods counter in the store but has something with a littler price than you expect tacked to it.

We crowd prices down whenever we can. Think of 37½c Tricot at 25c!

or 50c (52-inch.) Suiting at 30c!
or rich 50c Stripes at 37½c!
or regular 50c Serge at 37½!

They stand for maybe a hundred stuffs that every-body is wanting.

72-inch German Table Damask. Clean, even thread without lumps; good weight, neat patterns, and the price but 87½c! Lower than we knew this quality before. A little finer, 90c: finer still, $1, Almost every housekeeper knows these sturdy, handsome German Damasks. The prices are what will surprise you.

There hasn't been a let up at the Bohemian Napkin counter. More than a thousand dozens sold since we first spoke of them the other day. Why not? 23 inches square, full selvedge, and the dozen price $1.10. They should be good sellers at $1.50.

Here's a Blanket you've seen the like of before. Last year we called it the "best Blanket for $5 we ever had." Just as far ahead this year as last. Big, generous to begin with, 74x84 inches; 6 pounds—12 ounces fine, strong cotton warp and every fibre of the rest good, springy, live wool. Finger it! Thick, soft, substantial, warm. But it won't feel heavy when you sleep under it. In all the market we don't know of its match at $5 a pair.

Any Blanket you want, up to the finest California at $35.

We take one gown as a fair sample of what a little money will do in Muslin Underwear: Good muslin, Mother Hubbard cut, square yoke of all-over embroidery, neat Hamburg edging at neck and sleeves; the price 75 cents.

Gowns for less of course—55 and 65c—good Gowns, and up to $2.50 for muslin, or $12 for cambric. And in every one your dimes or dollars count as richly.

Biggest value we ever had in Celluloid Toilet Sets—comb, brush (real bristles), mirror:

1—"Rope" handle, oval or square Mirror and Brush, $1.50.
2—Twisted handle, square Brush and Mirror, $1.50
3—Plain handle, oval Brush and Mirror, $1.

ROYALTY AT A STAGE DOOR.

From the Boston Globe.

An amusing story about Richard Mansfield, the actor, is going the rounds. The last time the Princess Mary Adelaide visited the Lyceum Theatre, London, she was accompanied by the Princess victoria, the young Princes, the Duke of Teck and a party of friends. Mr. Mansfield, having entertained them with some light refreshments served in the saloon attached to the Royal box, himself joined the company after the play, still wearing the costume in which he had appeared upon the stage. Having conversed with her Royal Highness for some time he gallantly offered his arm to the Duchess to escort her to her carriage.

Unfortunately Mr. Mansfield is rather near sighted, and, also unfortunately, two stairways absolutely similar in appearance, lead, one to the Royal entrance, the other to the stage. Mr. Mansfield took the latter, the Princes and the Princess and the entire suite following him. Arriving at the foot of the flight of stairs, the Princes Mary, who although a very handsome woman, is extraordinarily stout, stopped for a moment to rest, when to everybody's horror Mr. Brown-Cave, Mr. Mansfield's Secretary, was heard to say in a very mild voice from the top of the landing, "Sir, yuo have taken the wrong staircase."

Mr. Mansfield looked at the Duchess; the Duchess looked at Mr. Mansfield.

"I hope," said the Princess with an air of great distress, and breathing hard, "I hope—I shall not have to go up again!"

"Not," replied Mr. Mansfield, "if your Royal Highness will consent to cross the stage."

There was a moment's hesitation, during which H. R. H. probably prayed that the Queen might not hear of this adventure, and then the whole party filed across the stage and out at the stage door where the crowd shouted itself hoarse at the sight of Mr. Mansfield in a blonde wig and silk stockings assisting a royal duchess into her carriage. Her Royal Highness was however in no way offended.

That Little Tickling

In your throat, which makes you cough once in a while and keeps you constantly clearing your throat, arises from catarrh, and as catarrh is a constitutional disease the ordinary cough medicines all fail to hit the spot. What you need is a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Many people who have taken this medicine for scrofula, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, and other troubles, have been surprised that it should cure this troublesome cough. But to know the actual cause of the cough is to solve the mystery. Many cases of consumption can be traced back to the neglect of some such slight affection as this. Consumption can be controlled in its early stages, and the effects of Hood's Sarsaparilla in purifying the blood, building up the general health, and expelling the scrofulous taint which is the cause of catarrh and consumption, has restored to perfect health many persons on whom this dreaded disease seemed to have a firm hold.

CATARRH,

Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

A NEW HOME TREATMENT.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to three simple applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrhal discharges peculiar to females (whites) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents by A. H. Dixon & Son, 304 West King St., Toronto, Canada.—Scientific American.

Sufferers from catarrhal troubles should read the above carefully.

An Attack of Gravel.

The Terrible Suffering of a Woman at 60.—How She was Happily Cured.

There is nothing I now enjoy that I do not owe to having used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. My troubles began in my kidneys and from which I never expected to recover. First there were pains in my back, I was feverish, with no appetite and could not sleep, I was compelled to use a cane, and finally got so weak that I could not stand alone. The distress in my back was terrible. I was burning up with a fever or constantly shivering as if cold. My physicians said which was alarming information. To add to my affliction after I had been ill about two years, I had a bad attack of Gravel. When this made its appearance my physician gave up my case, and I resigned myself to die. I had four doctors attend me, the best in the country, yet I constantly grew worse. Six years ago last June, how well I remember the time! I saw Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy advertised in our paper. After using one bottle I threw away my cane and went to New York on a visit, and three bottles cured me. I have never had a return of Gravel, nor of the pains or weakness in the back, and though I am over sixty years of age I am

I HAD BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

"Hello! Hello!! Hello!!!"

"Well; what is it?"

"How is your mother, this morning?"

"Very much better; she had a real restful sleep last night; she is almost rid of her night-sweats, cough and nervousness, and is growing quite cheerful. How grateful we all are to you for that bottle of medicine."

"Don't speak of gratitude. What does the doctor say?"

"He says he never saw so wonderful a change in such a serious lung trouble. He still thinks we are giving his medicines. I don't like to tell him."

"That's right. He's an old friend, you know. I'm sure your mother will get well now; but you won't forget the name of the medicine, will you?"

"Never! Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery" are household words already, and it has come to stay. Do come and see what sunshine it has brought already, and let us thank you again for it."

"I will. Good bye."

The foregoing is a fair representation of a very common occurrence. "Golden Medical Discovery" has cured severe, lingering coughs and arrested Consumption, or Lung-scrofula, in thousands of cases after doctors have failed and other medicines have been tried and abandoned as useless. The "Discovery" is guaranteed to benefit or cure in every case, if taken in time and given a fair trial, or money will be refunded.

Double Locomotives

The Railroad Gazette calls attention to a double locomotive for the Indian state railways which is a novel departure from the common practice. The design is realy a permanent double header; that is, it is intended for use when the the conditions are such as to require the use of two locomotives of the ordinary type, continually in tandem. This arrangement removes the necessity for two tenders, and renders easier the transmission of signals from one cab to another. There is nothing in this arrangement to criticise it is really almost the only plan upon which locomotives of great capacity can be constructed with any approach to a minimum of weight per running foot of track. This general plan is not new in America, however. The well known William Mason, of the Mason locomotive works, of Taunton, Mass., constructed locomotives on this general plan many years since; and recently the South Side Rapid Transit company of Chicago, while investigating the possibilities of extending the usefullness of the proposed structure in years to come, decided that the adoption of a locomotive of a design similar to the one described above would enable them to haul nearly double the number of cars around the sharpest curves without increasing the load per running foot of the structure.—Science.

The Wine for Rheumatism and Dropsy.

Dropsical and Rheumatic persons find the use of Speer's Port Grape Wine of New Jersey of incalculable benefit. Its purity and valuable properties have given it a wide reputation among physicians throughout this country and Europe. It is excellent for debilitated females, and is used by the best families in New York and Washington as an evening family wine. For sale by druggists.

A Matrimonial Barometer.

A MAN'S SHAVING HABITS AN UNFAILING INDICATION OF HIS INTENTIONS.

A young man, who for several years had been getting shaved at one of the Madison Square hotels, stepped up to the chair of his favorite barber the other day. His face was cleanly shaven and the barber noted it and when the young man said he wanted his hair cut, the barber began operations immediately and in silence. But in a little while he began to murmur, "Very soon, very soon, ah!" The young man didn't know what that meant, but said nothing. The barber repeated the words a moment later. Still the man in the chair remained silent. Then the barber, who had known the young man sufficiently long to become somewhat familiar began to ask, "How soon, how soon, how soon will it be?"

"What on earth are you driving at, man?" suddenly asked the perplexed victim.

"Oh, nothing; but I see you are beginning to shave yourself and I take it that is a sign of something. Yes, I know pretty well what it means when a young man stops getting us to shave him. It's the beginning of his economies and about the first sign that the young man is going to get married. Almost any observant barber will tell you that this is a belief in the trade, and I can tell by the way you look that it's the case with you."

The victim didn't say anything just then, but as he was leaving he admitted that the philosopher was right.—New York Sun.

M. Leon Esquine, a Mexican, it is stated, has perfected a marvelous invention in electricity and photography. By speaking in a photophone transmiter, which consists of a highly polished diaphragm reflecting a ray of light, this ray of light is set into vibrations, and a photograph is made of it in a traveling band of sensitized paper. Now comes the wonderful part. If the image of this photographic tracing is projected by means of an electric arc or oxyhydrogen light upon a selenium receiver, the original speech is then heard. It is evident that there is no limit to the development of this combination of methods. This is very important, if true.

"These strange phenomena recall, and also explain," comments M. Binet, "the bleeding stigmas which have been repeatedly observed in the subjects of religious ecstasy who have pictured to themselves the passion of Christ."

And it might be added that they justify, if one could assume that justification were necessary, the bold imaging of Howthorne in having a scarlet A appear upon the breast of Arthur Dimmesdale from intense brooding over the badge of shame. The point is not one which in the least affects the value of the story, but is of a certain curious interest.—Boston Courier.

Ringing Noises.

In the ears, sometimes a roaring buzzing sound are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

The manufacture of "leatherboard" as a substitute for real leather for shoe stiffenings is an important industry in Maine. While the product has the color and quite the appearance of leather, yet these qualities have no leather in their composition, but are composed instead of hemp, flax and other similiar materials ground up and pressed into sheets by a somewhat similar process to that of the manufacture of paper. The manufacture affords an opportunity for the disposal of old sails, cordage and other worn out materials in to which the required ingredients have entered, and, as in the manufacture of paper, the product bears little apparent relation to its constituent parts.
